MARTIN & FROST

You don't need to be dramatic to come to Martin & Frost

Singing, dancing, high drama, and comedy are all superbly presented at Eden Court but Martin and Frost is about good things too. Simply drive up, park and enjoy what we have on view. We can prompt you with ideas and settings to show off a new suite, a better bed, curtains, carpets or rugs. If you want a simple room set we can do it; or something more dramatic we can do that too, with elegant curtains, fringes, tie backs and fine hand carved furniture. Like good theatre, shopping at the new Martin and Frost is a real pleasure.

Brigadoon

Music by Frederick Loewe

Libretto and Lyrics by Alan Jay Lerner

The Story

Two Americans, Tommy Albright and his pal Jeff Douglas, chance upon a small Scottish village in a Highland mist. They discover, mainly from the village schoolmaster Mr Murdoch, that Brigadoon is an enchanted place that only comes to life for one day every hundred years. Tommy and Jeff meet Fiona MacKeith and Meg Brockie, and Tommy and Fiona soon find in each other a deep understanding. We follow the villagers through a day that includes a wedding and learn that if one of the inhabitants should leave Brigadoon the spell will be broken for ever. There is near-disaster when a young embittered Scot tries to take his revenge. He dashes towards the forest but is killed making his escape. Happiness is changed to mourning. Tommy has by now fallen deeply in love with Fiona but he is told he cannot stay. He goes back with Jeff to New York and quarrels with his fiancée. Suddenly in a New York bar he sees a vision of Fiona and comes to a decision. He knows he must return to Scotland. There by the power of love he reawakens the slumbering Brigadoon just long enough for him to be reunited with Fiona.

It's up to you whose hands you put your money into.

In the 1986 budget, the Chancellor of the Exchequer gave the thumbs up to a brand new payroll donation scheme.

Now anyone on a PAYE scheme can donate up to £120 every year, tax free, to the charities of their choice.

And that, you may be surprised to learn, is good news for the arts in Scotland. Because most Scottish arts organisations are either registered charities or have charitable status.

Any contributions you make to the arts from now on will be deducted from your pay before tax.

So money, which would have ended up clenched in the taxman's fist, goes straight into the hands of galleries, theatres and other arts organisations. And they can put every penny to good use.

If you think the arts in Scotland are important and want to support them, the easiest way is to give as you earn. As little as 25p or as much as £2.30 a week. And you can stop the payments at any time.

GIVE
AS YOU EARN

Whatever you give, it will give us a helping hand. And the taxman won't lay a finger on it.
